

Concept Note

Interdisciplinary approaches and new technologies are being embraced in the humanities in innovative and exhilarating ways. While we engage humanities with retrospective and in-depth historical analysis, today practitioners of humanities should play a vital role in developing new research trends embracing novel methods. We have witnessed the emergence of medical humanities, digital humanities, geo-humanities, bio-humanities, eco-literature, performance studies, disability studies, visual studies, etc. bringing together knowledge from diverse disciplines. The deployment of knowledge from such diverse disciplines has helped in reconfiguring the understanding of humanities. This one-day national seminar aims to explore the emerging research trends in humanities in order to engage in a dialogue as well as introduce students to the new and diverse fields of research. Experts from different fields will disseminate ideas in the seminar.
