About the Central University of Karnataka:

Central University of Karnataka was established by an Act of Parliament in 2009. It is a new emerging institution striving for excellence in education by imparting quality teaching, and research in Sciences, Social Sciences, Humanities, Business Studies, and Engineering & Technology. The University is currently offering courses in Under Graduate, Post Graduate and Doctoral Degrees. The University has excellent physical infrastructure and more is on the way. For further information about CUK, please visit www.cuk.ac.in.

About School of Social & Behavioural Sciences:

The School of Social and Behavioural Sciences has the distinction of excellence and innovation in teaching, research, practice, community engagement and extension services through the academic programmes to study and address the contemporary issues of society. The academic programmes of the School are engaged in crafting young human resources to emerge as leaders in the academic disciplines of Psychology, History, Social Work, Public Administration and Folklore Studies. Uniqueness of the programmes is right integration of behavioural, historical, Governance and social approaches for better understanding of individual, groups, culture, communities, organizations, system, society and global order at large. The motto of the School is to empower students to professionally engage with the issues of behaviour change, human growth, historical analysis, contemporary analysis, and contemporary debates on governance, public service delivery challenges, social transformation, human rights, social justice, gender, social development and social change.

About the Department of Public Administration:

The Department of Public Administration in Central University of Karnataka is established in 2019 and offering Post Graduate and Doctoral programmes. Department is offering a new innovative course titled “Public Administration & Governance” at Post Graduation level and main aim of this course is to integrate the traditional knowledge of Administration with contemporary issues in Governance which will help both Academician and Practitioner to know how government works and how it can work better. Administration & Governance encompasses all three levels of government (federal-state-local bodies) and addresses the most important contemporary issues in economic, social and political domains.

In an era of new paradigms emerging in the realm of governance, there is a need to produce skilled and trained manpower, with a new orientation, to take care of public administration and help in devising public policies for maximising the growth and development of a vast multitude of the population of our country. It provides a wide range of theoretical and application-oriented inputs on various aspects of managing Governance and Public-Systems. This is a unique integration of concepts, tools, and techniques with stress on interlinking post independent administrative experiences with post NPM enabled Governance framework. The program aims to train present and future leaders, functionaries and activists in government and non-government agencies and civil society.

About the National Seminar:

Public Administration is one of the youngest disciplines in social sciences which intends to assess the past in order to provide solutions to resolve contemporary issues. Increased public expectations for positive and self-evident results and enhanced response will require fundamental transformation of government. In current times, public sector organizations are under ever-increasing pressure for more profound changes so that they can tackle the growing pressure from multiple dimensions like poverty, terrorism, development, quality assured governance, leadership, service delivery etc. A concern for efficiency is inevitable when dealing with issues such as governance strategy, risk management, the ability to adapt to change, collaborative action, and the need to understand the impact of policies on society. To respond to these challenges, governments need more sophisticated and dynamic strategies for transformation than they have generally had till date.

Most governments have been actively reforming their activities for several decades now. Initially, these efforts were relatively concentrated on improving efficiency, reforming management practices, streamlining program operations. One major question in public administration is how public organisations can reflect on challenges and harness opportunities. Thinking in time helps the public administrator to implement current trends which include new governance, new leadership styles, generational change, strategic and performance measurement, reorganized work structure and process, e-government and e-democracy, service delivery, innovation, ethics and transparency.

Perhaps, the most important issue or challenge is to integrate widely existing knowledge of the social sciences with quality governmental operation. In the coming years, public administration will be evaluated by higher standards of theory cohesiveness and comprehensive performance indicators rooted in a variety of scientific fields. The exploration of new interdisciplinary horizons for public administration is thus essential and inevitable for the successful passage of the discipline into new era.

The proposed National Seminar will bring together academicians, researchers, and practitioners from various HEIs, research institutions, civil society organizations and public agencies all over the country. The objective of this seminar is to provide platform for presenting research papers, for engaging on topical issues and for collaborating with like-minded individuals to address critical issues in governance and policy matters. This forum aims to initiate opportunities for building networks through collaborations for contemporary issues in the discipline of Public Administration.

Call for Papers:

The seminar welcomes research papers from all disciplines that relate with the theme of event. The seminar will be inaugurated with a Key-note Address and a Panel Discussion on the theme “Emerging Trends in Public Administration: The Way Forward”.
